TriVector Names new Sr. Vice President of Civil Space Strategic Business Unit

Marc Verhage has been named Sr. Vice President of the Civil Space Strategic Business Unit (SBU) for TriVector Services, Inc. This SBU provides key support in the form of project management, systems engineering and integration, modeling and simulation, guidance navigation and control, configuration and data management, avionics and software integration and system affordability to NASA's Space Launch System (SLS) and other projects.

Verhage

Verhage has seven years of executive experience and technical leadership in private industry along with 17 years of experience with the U.S. Government in key technical and strategic roles in the development and deployment of NASA's International Space Station, Space Shuttle Block Upgrades, X-37 Autonomous Landing and Test Vehicle and Exploration Mission Directorate Launch Systems and ARES Upper Stage Element Office. He has supported efforts at all levels of NASA including chief engineer of the Ares I Crew Launch Vehicle Upper Stage Element.

"TriVector Services is dedicated to customer satisfaction, and Marc Verhage's position as Sr. Vice President of the Civil Space Strategic Business Unit places a high-caliber leader with known experience and performance in a position to add great value to our Civil Space efforts including NASA's Space Launch System," said President of TriVector Services Joey Shelton. □
